The Meredith Tax Collector is sending out the last warning notices to all delinquent tax payers. With a new party in power, there'll be no tax bills to meet next year as the government is going to pay all the expenses hereafter.

(Plymouth Record)

Wonder how the result will affect the plans of the Republican legislative income tax schedulers.

The Republican leaders will not be able to complain about the top heavy majority in the next congress.

How fine it would be if the Democratic landslide taught the members of the various congressional blocs the folly of log-rolling for class legislation and inspired them with a determination to attend strictly to the real job, which is legislating with an eye only to the welfare of the United States of America, one and indivisible.

(Franklin Journal-Transcript)

"Both sides confident," was the statement on the political situation Monday night. Well, confidence is a good thing, but if it is not backed by hard work it amounts to but little.

The campaign in this state was noted as one where political advertising in the papers was practically ignored. A plentiful use of printer's ink might have brought forth a different result. Look at the results in Massachusetts!

The New York Times and other dailies are now asserting that the next election will be a straight fight between the wets and the dries. One envisages the two candidates in that campaign.

Dear Editor:

Excuse my delay in sending you a check for the News—but here it is and may your shadow never grow less. The News appears with a flourish as well as Ye Editor. There is much of interest in every issue and those articles in our friends' Mail are not to be missed. He gives us a lot of history in a few lines, but like all historians he makes a slip now and then, and, of course, to the fact that he cannot know all about our old residents. In the last issue is speaking of Moses Moulton, he referred to Geo. Moulton as the sole survivor of this family. Here in Manchester we have a very lively member of the Moulton family, Walter M. Moulton, Driver of Engine 8, Manchester Fire Dept. He is a brother to George Moulton. His son, Walter, works in our department at McElwain's and served in the Manchester Battery in the late war, training that you will confine yourself to 48 hours per week in the future, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

Jas. F. Estes

E. H. WILCOMB WRITES OF "MEREDITH'S PAST"

A Belknap County Printer of the "Old Days" Much Interested in the Maloon Articles

Editors of the Meredith News:

Mr. Maloon, the famed "village blacksmith," has been writing interestingly of "Meredith's past," though this staid old town never had anything more to be ashamed of than any other old town, unless it be a more pronounced idea of superstitious fictions, in early days, which sometimes led to disastrous results, and possibly a more widespread hard cider and New England run habit, that gave the old town a bad name and doubtless accounted for such unfortunate incidents as the one Mr. Maloon tells about, where an old-timer woke up, one night, and ran wildly through the streets, flourishing his fire bucket and "hollering fire" two hours after the fire had been extinguished.

We think it was Sheriff Hanson Beede who, in Civil War times, rounded up a considerable gang of draft evaders and deserters in a nearby locality and marched them to Laconia unassisted, after removing from each prisoner their only precarious means of trousers support, compelling the constant use of both hands and preventing all possibility of running away. The idea has since been extensively adopted in the west.

The old stage coach story lacks one interesting detail that we have never found. It was a famous stage line, the Conway line and evolved a very ingenious idea to overcome hilly obstacles. He established three rates of fare, though the reason for this was never stated to passengers in advance. When the stagecoach reached the foot of one of the long, steep hills the driver called out "First-class passengers keep your seats; second-class hit the dirt (meaning to get out and walk); third-class get behind and push."

James Beede was station agent for a good many years and 'tis said he sometimes steered would-be passengers to his brother's lively stable, where means of transportation were provided, although the railroad company never seemed to be aware of this. He also co-operated with the baggagemen on the trains to take charge of shipments of berries, poultry, eggs and other marketable products of the villagers, which were disposed of by the trainmen in Boston, to the advantage of all concerned except the railroad. However, this was common practice all along the line. It used to be said that it "didn't cost the railroad anything, because the trains had to run anyway."

Capt. Eleazer Bickford, an old-time resident, always exercised his influence in favor of the old town whenever he could, as captain and pilot of the early steamboats, by having them tied up for repairs here, adjacent to Natt Wade's sawmill and lumber yard. Capt. Bickford supervised the selection of a large amount of ship lumber in early days and was always on the lookout for lumber suitable for ship-knees, which was said to account for his abnormally developed bow-legs.

Everybody who ever had any business dealt with Seneca Ladd remembers how difficult it was to make him give up anything he didn't care about hearing, while, on the other hand, his hearing seemed to be excellent when a financial proposition looked good to him. This apparent defect was said to be one of his chief assets in business and was turned to good account in his own behalf.

Old Doctor Sanborn was probably the best-known man in Meredith, of every surrounding town and his pills and pukes were the terror of youthful members of every household, including the writer, who felt that he was dying one time, after vainly trying to smoke his grandfather's old black pipe, but who revived immediately when Doctor Sanborn appeared on the scene.

Not more could be written about the other old-timers of Meredith, but we will close this article by reciting an incident in the life of good old Elder Burnham. In his prime the elder is said to have converted Natt Davis of Governor's Island, down the lake. Natt had been a tough character but had partially reformed and became an affluent citizen.

The preacher had won over him in his own mind, but he was in religion and built a small church near the entrance to the island to enable him to practice his belief in his own way. At first he had no use for ministers of the gospel, "because they labored not with their hands," and refused to allow them inside the church. But finally he was induced to allow Elder Burnham to preach one Sunday. Natt said he might come and preach but he wouldn't give him a tassel cent. Just before services commenced Natt entered the church with a characteristic scowl on his face and took his seat.

Burnham was a very eloquent preacher and it seemed to be his sole purpose on this occasion to move Natt's dirty heart. He expounded and exhorted in a remarkably persuasive manner and hadn't got more than half way through his appeal when Natt began to blubber.

He stood it as long as he could and then broke down completely. Jumping to his feet he interrupted the preacher by blurring out: "Devil 'most got Old Natt this time, Brother Burnham, but you've licked him; amen. You've saved Old Natt; he's take up a collection" and he started the contributions with a ten-dollar gold piece.

MEREDITH'S PAST

E. H. MALOON, the Village Blacksmith, Delves Into Local History

Editor News:

We will begin this week's letter at the James Gilman farm on the Neck. Mr. Gilman was a prosperous farmer, honest and square in all his deals. His family consisted of two daughters, Lill and Susan, and two sons, Granville and Frank. The boys left home and Granville gathered a vast amount of wealth. Of him I knew but little. After the father died Frank came home, and with his sister Sue, ran the farm and finally died. The farm, this strange lands went with it.

Our next house is the Josiah Prescott farm. Here was a good farmer, Mary Jane, and a son Fred. Fred was for a long while connected with the New Boston mill and he moved out where he made good. Mary Jane married a man in Boston. I do not know his name, but he died and she died as I have not seen any of them for years. Here are four prominent families living. None of the Prescott children living. None of the Prescott children married that I know of. When the Prescott farm came into the hands of Josiah Prescott, there was a man by the name of Josiah Prescott who went with it. He was to have a living off the farm as long as he lived. After many years Josiah bought him off and he moved out to the village and lived in the house now owned by Mr. Durant. How long he lived I do not know.

In those days they used to say that the farmers were clannish and lived among themselves as much as they could. I have heard them say that years ago. When the Prescott farm came into the hands of Josiah Prescott, there was a man by the name of Josiah Prescott who went with it. He was to have a living off the farm as long as he lived. After many years Josiah bought him off and he moved out to the village and lived in the house now owned by Mr. Durant. How long he lived I do not know.

A little off the main road are two farms owned by Zephaniah Eaton and one by John Eaton. Zephaniah had two sons, Charles and George. Charles married Miss Mary Smith and now lives in the village having married Miss Mary Smith. George married Miss Mary Smith and now lives in the village having married Miss Mary Smith. George married Miss Mary Smith and now lives in the village having married Miss Mary Smith.

Col. Cummings bought the John Eaton farm which he made into a summer home until he passed away. He was a fine man to meet, smooth and easy in his manners. I did some work for him. I think that he was generally liked.

Near the Zephaniah Eaton farm is a small house known as Old Joe Mead's boys. Of him I know but little. Next comes the old brick house, the home of Josiah Mead. He is one of my customers and I knew him well. His son, Bert, runs the farm and adds to the summer people while caring for the farm.

Thursdays the end of the road is the old poor farm, where the poor of our town were taken care of.

Coming back to the main road and going up the hill we have the William Mead place. Mr. Mead is dead and his son runs the place.

Close to Mr. Mead's we have a small house where Will Roberts used to live. Next was the home of Alonzo Bickford. I think he was the son of Uncle Jim Bickford. For many years he was ex teamster for Nathan B. Wade and then lived in the house that is now the fire engine house.

The next place is known as the Dr. Geo. Sanborn place. Next comes Smith Lovejoy's place. I know nothing of him.

On the other side of the road is the Lute Knowles place. This is now in the Knowles family and is occupied by one of the daughters with her family.

Further back is the place that was built back next to the lake that was built by Lute Knowles worked for him. Lute used to water over his body and one place on that farm that cart and wheels would stand without hitching and that was on the extreme top of the hill.

Elin Clark used to live in this neighborhood. He married some of the Boardman's folks and I think he had been in the Boardman family. Stephen Boardman came next. He was a man that was strictly honest and upright, but he had queer notions. He once fell into the water while rafting logs and nearly froze to death. As a young man he was sickly. After this accident he began to be better and he got a notion that it was the cold water that helped him and for a long time after he used to slap a towel wet in cold water over his body and so he got out of bed in the morning, summer and winter.

Going toward the lake we have the Thomas Roberts place. He and his wife were more customers of mine. They are all dead.

George Wiggin comes next. He was the father of John Wiggin, who bought the John Smith place. He, like the of his party in Indiana, might get ambitious and offer himself. His followers, as well as those of Senator New, are accused of having killed Beveridge at the polls, and the charge seems to be true, as Republican congressmen were elected in nine of the thirteen Indiana districts.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts just managed to weather the storm. His plurality over Guston was about 8,000—a fourth of what it was in 1914. W. N. Peria, who defeated Senator Townsend in Michigan, announces that his first effort when he gets to Washington will be to unseat Senator Newberry.

Respectful of partisan feeling, there will be widespread regret over the defeat of Senators Kellogg of Minnesota and Poinsett of Washington, for he has a platform with himself able, honest and industrious servants of the people. The same may be said of the defeated Sen. Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, who was repudiated by his party two years ago, goes back for a third term with a majority of 34,000.

Shortly before the election former President Wilson wrote a letter saying that if Reed were returned to the senate he would "at once be there a man without a party."

The lower house of the Sixty-eighth congress will be composed of 225 Republicans, 207 Democrats, one Socialist, one Independent and one Farmer-Labor member. If these figures are not changed by the revised returns, the Republicans will have a majority vote of 15.

Some senate seats were lost by the Republicans, by the defeat of Sen. La Follette in Delaware, Francis P. McPherson in Michigan, Kellogg in Minnesota, Frelinghuysen in New Jersey, Calder in New York, Poinsett in Washington, and the defeat of Sen. Hiram Johnson in California.

Among the outstanding results of the election was the great victory of Senator Wood R. Borah in Nebraska, who will be re-elected.

Miller for the governorship, which he once before held, by a plurality of more than 300,000. This makes him a mere man, there will not be one woman in the Sixty-eighth congress.

PRESIDENT HARDING still hopes to have the ship subsidy bill passed by this congress and therefore has called for its passage on November 20. The measure is also certain to encounter stubborn opposition in the senate, and many leaders of both parties believe it cannot get through.

MUSTAFA KEMAL PASHA and the Turkish nation are not satisfied with the victories they have already won and are threatening to stir up a lot more trouble in the Near East.

MEREDITH LOCALS

School Notes

On November 9, 10 and 11, Supt. H. B. Baker was in attendance at the annual meeting of the New England Superintendents at Boston. Mr. Baker reports a splendid meeting and the help of our local branch and this excellent work is to be continued, appropriation having been made for its continuance.

Last year 112 children of the public schools had dental work done by the help of our local branch and this excellent work is to be continued, appropriation having been made for its continuance.

Be sure to have your membership in. It costs you but a dollar, and every cent of your dollar goes for you in helpful service. The local committee contains a group of women like the late Mrs. Wilcox, who spend their energy that no need be passed without generous attention and we want to uphold their hands. It is the least we can do. The committee has asked for 250 members. Let's give them 300.

Mr. Williams of Keene Normal School, who has just supervised the instruction in music for the past ten weeks, has returned to Keene, where he will pursue her studies further. Standard Containers for Fruits and Vegetables

The multiplicity of sizes and the fraudulent use to which many of the fruit would be used to be all the argument that is needed for the United States standards for hampers, round wire baskets, and split baskets for fruit and vegetables. The bill which has already passed the House is now before the Senate and should be passed by that body at an early date.

Not only will standard containers of the kinds enumerated eliminate many of the fake measures, unfair practices, and chaotic conditions which exist for the markets due to the present sizes and different prices quoted on this market for commodities held in these containers, but standardization should reduce the cost of the packages and reduce the cost of the package should be reflected advantageously to shippers, dealers and consumers.

ers cannot go the Red Cross goes. The horrors of Syria are alienated and her gifts; the sufferers of war are always cared for and no disaster occurs without the immediate attention of this great organization. Half your membership fee remains in Meredith for local needs.

Last year 112 children of the public schools had dental work done by the help of our local branch and this excellent work is to be continued, appropriation having been made for its continuance.

Be sure to have your membership in. It costs you but a dollar, and every cent of your dollar goes for you in helpful service. The local committee contains a group of women like the late Mrs. Wilcox, who spend their energy that no need be passed without generous attention and we want to uphold their hands. It is the least we can do. The committee has asked for 250 members. Let's give them 300.

Mr. Williams of Keene Normal School, who has just supervised the instruction in music for the past ten weeks, has returned to Keene, where he will pursue her studies further. Miss Fuller of the same school will take up their work for the next two weeks and at the end of that time, Miss Williams will return.

Mr. Everett Donnelly of Springfield, Mass., has taken charge of the French and Latin departments following the resignation of Miss Emma Moulton.

Mr. Donnelly has received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Holy Cross College, and the degree of Master of Arts from Clark University and comes to us especially well prepared to teach these subjects.

Joseph Livingston Laid Away
The funeral of the late Joseph Livingston was held last Thursday afternoon, services at the home being well attended. The bearers were Olin L. Philbrook, Frank R. Prescott, John Jackson and H. E. Smith. Rev. O. J. Gupill officiated and Wilbur Emery was the funeral director.
There was a profusion of floral tributes. The remains were taken to Meredith-Center, near his old home, for burial.

Dr. F. M. Spaulding, of Brookline, Mass., who is a summer resident of Holderness, was in Meredith on business Saturday.

Quite a few inquiries have been made about the special Christmas number of the News and it would be well to speak in advance for extra space, so as to be sure of a good position. The paper will be served. One of our merchants has already spoken for a whole page.
The funeral of Mrs. Lilla Wilcox was one of the largest attended in many years in Meredith. The flowers were very beautiful and most abundant and the service simple and impressive. The Lakeside Rebekeah Lodge and Ellacoya Chapter, O. E. S. attended in large numbers and both lodges escorted the body as far as Plymouth street.

"Pontic," Mr. Maloon's dog, well known on Water street for years, has passed to the happy hunting ground of good dogs. Pontic was about 16 years old and when he was in his prime was one of the brightest dogs in town. Full of cute tricks and at one time had his picture in the News with "Swirly" telling how smart and knowing he was.

CARD OF THANKS
We desire to heartily thank all those persons so helpful and kind during our late bereavement. We shall always remember them, and we also want to thank those who sent the beautiful flowers, silent testimonials to the esteem in which our dear one was held.

A BIG ATTENDANCE
Annual Roll Call at North Church Brings Together Earnest Workers
With over seventy in attendance and with reports by correspondence and otherwise from many more, the annual meeting and roll-call of the North Church, Thursday evening, was the most successful in his history. Mrs. Wadsworth was chairman of the supper committee, and all the cooks were at their best. Everybody brought their best, and the feast would have tempted the man with none, so attractive was everything. There was no cutting speech, but after the folks had done simple justice to the many fine dishes, the Pastor opened the meeting with an earnest prayer and the Clerk, Mrs. Lancel, called the roll. It is always interesting to follow this helpful exercise and this year's roll-call was characterized by special features, as the word from the boys and girls away at school and the special remembrances from old friends of the Church long since drawn away to other places but not forgetting the home town and the business of the night had been carried rapidly with reports from the various officers and standing committees of old friends of the Church. The Superintendent of the Church School, was replete with encouragement and the pastor, Mr. Wadsworth, made the past year has not been more notable than in other years, but the roll-call was a pleasant surprise. The roll-call was the most efficient conducted in his history. The clerk reported that the church membership of 1906 was 253, an increase of 10 from the year before. The total of membership to the highest in our history. The Treasurer's report was printed and in the hands of every person present. It was not only an eloquent record of the performance of the Church, but a testimonial to the efficiency and care of the Treasurer.

With larger expenses, due to progress in all lines, the Church meets for the first time in the hands of three years has taken an ever growing share in the outside interests of the denomination. The record here is impressive, not counting some of the gifts by auxiliary and personal pledges paid by subscribers to various fraternal organizations, etc., showed that a total exceeding $600 had been bestowed.
All the recommendations of the Church Committee were adopted, including the annual budget for current expenses amounting to $34,040, and the budget for benevolence, which was increased for the coming year, the church feeling that with all the need for us, we should share our prosperity with the less privileged in ever increasing measure.
A resolution committee offered resolutions tenderly and gratefully remembering those who have preceded us, the last Roll-Call, William C. Walker, Mrs. Martha A. Norris, G. W. Wilkins, Mrs. Lilla Wilcox, Mrs. Evelyn Wilkins, Mrs. Chester Haynes, Mrs. Caroline Stevens, Mrs. N. L. Lancel, P. F. Smith, Mrs. Nellie Gordon, Mrs. Elizabeth Caverly, Mrs. Lilla Brown.

WHEN EVERY MOVE HURTS
Lame every morning, achy and stiff all day, worse when it is damp or rainy? Suspect your kidneys and try the remedy your neighbors use.
Mrs. P. W. Ladd, Plymouth St., Meredith, says: "I can indeed say a good word for Doan's Kidney Pills. I had used them for the last several years for my back and kidneys when they were out of sorts. I also suffered with a constant pain in my back and when I awoke in the morning I was in the small of my back. My kidneys were sore and acted too frequently. I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved the trouble. I now keep Doan's on hand at all times and use them occasionally as a kidney tonic with excellent results."
Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't suffer from a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Ladd had. Foster-Milburn Co., Rye, Buffalo, N. Y.

New Hampshire which returned a Republican majority of 31,000 for Governor in 1906, returned a Republican majority of 10,000 Tuesday. With 18 small town missing, the vote was Fred H. Brown, democrat, 57,574; T. L. Goodnow, republican, 57,574. This is the second time since 1876 that a democratic governor has been elected in this state. The democrats elected W. N. Rogers, congressman in the first district. He defeated John Seamon, republican, by over 6,000. Congressmen Edward H. Washburn, republican, defeated William H. Barry, democrat, as congressman in this district, by about 3,000. The democrats have control of the House of Representatives. The republicans retain control of the Senate. The executive committee remains republican with four of the five members of that political faith.

Little conveniences that adorn the home carry messages of good will at Christmas time. A phone screen covered with plain and figured crettons, and providing a place for records of telephone numbers and calls will be welcome to men and women alike.

Ever Welcome Bags

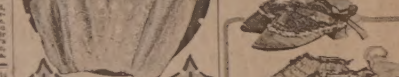

Christmas time is the springtime of bright creations when they blossom out into all sorts of ingenious and beautiful gifts. The picture shows a rock or shopping bag folded and unfolded. It is merely a spacious oblong bag of cretton, with small cretton, bound with hand, sewed to one side, and by means of snap fasteners. It can be folded and converted into a pretty shopping bag.

Smart Nanette Fans

These brilliant little Nanette fans began their careers bound in France, one of them, as a plain, small palm leaf and the other as a plaided ribbon fan. By means of paint, white cretton, orgeonite or military flowers they have graduated into the smart set and will accompany gay frocks to joyous parties. One of the fans pictured has a shirred binding of ribbon in green. Its handle is bound with ribbon, finished with a loop and organic roses in soft colors adorn it. Painted flowers or military flowers and foliage adorn the plaided fan and ribbon covers its handle.

THE TEXAS HOSPITAL PLAN

State Department Places Work First on List—Financing the Responsibility of All Units.

"The department of Texas places hospital work first and considers it a privilege to do everything possible in this respect," writes Mrs. Ada May Maddox, secretary of the department of Texas. And her report of the hospital work which has been done in Texas during the past year bears out the statement.

Mrs. Edward C. Murray. A state hospital plan was instituted May 23, 1921. The first check which came into headquarters was from Santa Anna, a unit so young that it had not yet received its charter. The Wichita Falls auxiliary, known as "The Bluebirds," was among the first to contribute. Since then approximately $5,000 has been deposited in the hospital fund, four Legion units having sent in, with out solicitation, about $500 of the amount. One post held a goosepicking contest to raise funds and others sent in the receipts of their poppy sales.

The object of the state fund is to make the financing of the hospital work the responsibility of all units, not limited to the ones nearest the hospitals. The state hospital committee, a chairman elected by the state convention and three members from each unit situated near a hospital for service men, handles the money that the chairman directs to the hospital work. He instructs his committee, approves statements and vouchers, prepares bulletins and does an enormous amount of work among the boys themselves. Mrs. David M. Duller of Houston served faithfully in that capacity last year, and Mrs. J. Ward McKee, also of Houston, is the active chairman.

The report says: "Mrs. Murray's mission to the state in the hospital bulletin and her vision in the hospital work has been the Texas unit to accomplish all this. It was her idea, also, that he units adopt patients and break the monotony of days in the hospital wards by writing to them and sending little gifts. This idea has been given to men without compensation, but men with compensation who need cheering are adopted also."

Mrs. Edward C. Murray of Houston is president of the department of Texas, and is also one of the national vice presidents of the American Legion Auxiliary. She was one of the first organizers of the auxiliary in Texas and was elected to the state presidency when the organization was formed in San Antonio in December, 1920. Under her direction many units have been formed and it is her purpose at present to establish a unit for each of the 21 Legion posts in Texas. Two of her policies are justice for disabled soldiers and encouragement of memorials which are not of some living glory to the men.

The department of Texas was first to contribute to the national hospital fund.

other Neckers, was a straight, square man to do business with. Charles Allen comes next. This man I do not know.

Next is the Daniel Wright place. He was a fine man to do business with, and such fall he and David Lovejoy used to buy poultry for the Boston market. These men are all dead and their children are scattered.

Coming back into the main road, we have the church where they sometimes hold service.

Next is the Colby Dockham farm. Colby is dead and the farm has been recently sold to B. O. Whitney for $4000. Colby, like the other Neck people, was a straight-going man and will be missed.

Crossing the road we have the Stephen Malson farm. Another customer of mine, now dead.

The next is the old home of John Roberts, whom everyone in the village liked when he clerked in the stores in town. John is dead but his widow is still alive, hale and hearty for a woman as old as she is.

A little back in the field is the old James Roberts place. James was the father of Moody Roberts, and I think, John Roberts, all dead.

Near here is the home of Saul Lovejoy, the only man of the old stock that I know of who is alive today.

Late Knowles' girl is a native Neck, and when he died he left a girl who is on the old place and if I remember right, Len Davis lived on the Neck, and when he died he left a son who is on the lower end of the Neck, I believe. These three or four people are the only representatives of the old people that were on the Neck fifty years ago.

David Lovejoy, a prominent man on the Neck, lived in this neighborhood. He had some sons I think, but I do not know where they are. I believe Stillman Lovejoy, the drug clerk, who used to live here is one of them.

Herbert Lovejoy is another old man of the Neck. Tommy Clark and his son Joe, the chair makers, were folk well known in the old times. They are all dead.

There used to be two Bickford farms which lived alone and did their own housekeeping, who lived on the lower end of the Neck. It has been years since I have been in this neighborhood and it is very hard for me to find these people that I used to know in their places and do them all justice. One thing is sure, they were a mighty fine class of people, square and honest in all their dealings.

The Late Kelly place is a little off the old road. I never was down to his house, but I knew him and his wife well. He was a customer of my father. He once asked a colt that was disposed to be ugly to handle. He sent her out there for John Roberts to break. She had to be shod but no one would touch her except me and I would not do it unless I could use the heavy rope on her. John said no, he would not have her roped so he took her back to Mr. Kelly. Next day Kelly came to me and asked me to show him what I wanted to do to the horse. I showed him what I should do and he said he would bring the colt out which he did. I slipped my line on her head and gave her a hard pull and she went up in the air and over backwards. She got up and I gave her some more of the same medicine and she came to me and allowed me to handle her in any way even to sitting down on her galls. I knew she would not kick as bad as the rope was in her mouth. I tied it up and left her in the floor unhitched and my father shod her with- out any trouble. We always put the rope on and tied it up and she never fought it. I gave Mr. Kelly a rope and used her for many years. I'm coming back to the village.

NEWS TO HAVE A SPECIAL CHRISTMAS NUMBER

Preparations Being Made to Print One of the Biggest Issues of the News Ever Published. To Appear December Thirtieth

A Fine Lithographed Cover to be one of the Features—Merchants Are Urged to Reserve Advertising Space for This Issue at Once. Fine Opportunity to Obtain Publicity

The News has an outfit now that permits it to go in for something really artistic, the new Whitlock Press and the Linotype press affording us advantages never heretofore enjoyed by a newspaper printed in Belknap County.

And so we are going to print a Christmas number, to be issued the thirtieth of December, in all probability. Reserve space for your Christmas advertising now in order to get good positions. The special lithographed Holiday Cover is a real piece of art, made from a special old painting by one of the foremost poster and cover artists in the United States.

From every point of view, it is the handsomest cover ever turned out for newspaper purposes.

Its original cost was the highest ever paid for a newspaper cover.

The artist, Norman Rockwell, is famous for his covers, adorning such publications as Saturday Evening Post, Country Gentleman, Literary Digest, Life, American Magazine and others of national circulation. His talents are far beyond the reach of individual newspapers and without syndication could not be available at all for newspaper purposes. Many thousands of people have bought one of the magazines mentioned, entirely on the strength of a Norman Rockwell cover.

The subject matter and composition possess the essentials of a Christmas theme and have a strong appeal to eye, heart and brain.

The design is ornate, with just the proper blending and shading of colors.

No metropolitan publication will have anything excelling this cover.

Speak at once for space in this great Christmas number. It will be read by many thousands of people, circulating as it will from Holderness to Whiteface, covering the entire surrounding country, embracing as it will both the Meredith News and the Sandwich News.

elder's and describe a few places that are on the left hand side of the road. John Batchelder of old was a blacksmith. John Howe was a blacksmith, and for years these men worked together and I think it was after they had a blacksmith shop on the Neck. When I first knew them John was dead and his widow was running the farm with a hired man and two boys. Once in a while an older son would come up from some town below here and help straighten things out, but she led a hard life. I do not know who runs the farm now.

Next is Toby Ham's place. When I first knew it Haven Randall owned it and he lived there many years. He liked to drive a good horse and finally he got one and ran away and killed him. It was then that Toby Ham came. He was a blacksmith by trade, but had tired of the hard work and went to farming. He stayed there until he died. The place is now owned by Herbert Rust, manager of the Electric Light Company.

Next comes Dr. Pellinby. He was a man that nature did not finish and he had a very large woman for a wife that nature left in worse shape than her husband was. Here the boys used to hang around and have what they called fun with the doctor. I heard things they used to do. The doctor had a cat that would sleep in the stove oven and when the boys caught her there they would shut the door and touch up the fire and in a short time the cat would begin to cry. This would get the old man mad and he would try to arouse to find his cat. Another thing they would do was to throw large stones up on the roof and let them roll off. This caused much loud talk and it amused the boys. The

We will tell this letter by telling of the little house that stands on the stream close to the bridge. When I first knew this Nathan Boynton used to own it. He was an old Boston teamster and did teaming here. There were two boys in this family, James and Bully by G. (this is what the old man used to say when he spoke of the Bully Bolton that we know to day.)

Away back they sold run in this old house, and one night there was an outcry and I started out to see the fun. Just as I got there the old man came in and he was running through a window (glass and all) into the stream. He swam toward the lake and came out behind the old brick shop. He got a heavy stone and he met his enemies, and I tell you before the police got

Next comes the old Henry Adams place which has been enlarged into some kind of a summer school.

Next comes the best of Meredith Bay, Lake Winnepesaukee, which gives us one of the best views of the bay and Clifford mountains in the distance to be had anywhere.

Next we have the lake houses I believe and then comes the old Howe & Batchelder blacksmith shop. This was one of the old landmarks of Meredith away back when my father was a boy. Here he learned his trade in first. This brick building was used for a blacksmith shop until Herbert Moulton got control of it, added to it and started a cabinet shop there. The business, as I remember it, was the beginning of the Blake brothers, Fred and Marsh. In this I may be mistaken, but the Blake boys had a small shop, where the cabinet factory now stands and Herbert Moulton had one where the garage now is on the flats. Which came first I do not remember, but the fact remains that one of these small beginnings was the foundation of the prosperous Caskey Company we now have.

Next comes the old home of the State Farm Bureau Federation which was built in 1923.

Further Improvement of Federal Land Banks

There are many localities in which co-operative Farm Land Banks or associations have not yet been formed, where it is impossible for the farmers to obtain the benefits of the Federal Farm Land Bank. Although at the time the Act was passed the co-operative banks were supposed by some functionaries primarily for farmers of limited means and acreage, their benefits have not been generally available in all sections of the country. It requires more or less energy and industry to start local farm land associations, and that is possibly one of the reasons why we do not have more of them.

A bill which will seek to relieve this situation undoubtedly will be presented to Congress in the near future. It will provide for the appointment by district farm land banks, of agents in nearby localities who will represent the bank and make loans for it. The farmer who would borrow from the bank through this local representative, of course, would be required to take stock in the association as well as the bank and make loans for it. The agent would represent the bank and comply with all the requirements of the present law. The activities of the agent, however, would be limited to the local farm land association as soon as ten farmers have borrowed through the agent.

THE FARM BLOCS' RECORD

Members of the Farm Blocs in Congress are meeting a hearty reception in their respective congressional districts from "the people back home," who appreciate their activities and know that more agricultural legislation was passed this session than ever before—legislation that not only is of value to agriculture but to all of the people.

The bill which corrected the former law regulating the trading in grain futures was passed just before Congress adjourned and should mean the saving of thousands of dollars on the part of the farmers through the elimination of wide fluctuation in the grain market due to speculation.

The twin bill, the act regulating the packers and stock yards, has been in force since last August a year ago and undoubtedly will result in a better regulation of the stock yards and will things quieted down there were some broken heads and the ground was bloody.

On these days the men were not half civilized. A little rum inside and they were crazy and would fight on the least provocation. saw old Nate and a man by the name of Nichols, fight there once. They use stones and their fists and it was a bloody time. One of them lost part of the face.

The last two letters have been hard to write as the people have died and the good boys of memory in part, but let us hope that the letters to come may prove more interesting.

Farm Credits' Legislation Pending

For a number of months prior to the adjournment of Congress that body had before it a score of bills which were intended to improve the facilities of the farmer to secure loans on crops and livestock, these loans running from six months to three years. The purposes of these bills are very similar and the general principle of this intermediate form of credit has been approved and requested by many agencies, including the Joint Agricultural Inquiry Commission, the National Agricultural Conference called by the administration last January, and practically all of the national farm organizations, including the American Farm Bureau Federation, and many local societies.

The need for legislation of this kind is without question. The aid which the War Finance Corporation has been able to give agriculture during the last year and a half, has proved that agriculture needs a method of financing which will take care of loans for crop production and orderly marketing. The approach of winter finds agriculture in a desperate straits and the average selling price of the commodities being below that of a year ago. Surpluses of food products are backed up on farms or held in storage and agriculture can not properly finance for carrying the load. Farmers in no end of instances have been forced to market their crops at ruinously low prices and to force them on markets which were already glutted, with the result that the over supplied markets failed to respond throughout the year.

This intermediate form of credit, which would secure capital through the flotation of short-time debenture bonds, would be called upon (1) to loan on agricultural products so that they may be marketed in an orderly manner and as consumption demands; (2) for loans on livestock; and (3) to loan for production purposes.

None of the bills under consideration have been reported from the committees, although much thought has been given by individual members of Congress and the agricultural bloc to the subject of better credit for the farming industry. The agricultural blocs have been holding hearings on the subject in several regular committee sessions.

Conferences have been held at the State Farm Bureau office with all the agricultural organizations of the state going over their problems and reaching a mutual understanding as to plans of their organizations. Organizations in attendance at these conferences were: Sheep Breeders' Association; Poultry Growers' Association; Horticultural Society; Beekeepers' Association; Dairyman's Association; and the Seed Improvement Association.
